

Quassel IRC - Bug #1231

New PMs from other users don't trigger notifications

06/14/2013 02:25 PM - got_milk

Status: Closed	Start date: 06/14/2013
Priority: Normal	Due date:
Assignee:	% Done: 0%
Category: Quassel Client	Estimated time: 0.00 hour
Target version:	OS: Mac OS X
Version: 0.9-pre
Description
Using quassel and quassel-core 0.9.0 and OS X 10.8 Mountain Lion.
If a user mentions my nick in a channel, I get a handy little notification to let me know I've been mentioned. But if a user starts a new private message with me, or responds to a conversation I'm having with them, Quassel doesn't provide me with any kind of notification. I don't know if this is intended behaviour or not (I assume not, because most IRC clients do provide notifications for these kinds of events), but as the sole administrator of a small IRC network I find it important to be notified if someone is sending me a PM (as it usually means they are looking for help).
Suggested resolution: provide (optional) notifications for new private messages or when someone has responded in a private message.
Related issues:
Related to Quassel IRC - Bug #1259: Notification not working properly even a...	New 12/31/2013
Related to Quassel IRC - Bug #1240: Notifications not sent when Quassel is mi...	Resolved 09/07/2013

History

#1 - 12/31/2013 08:39 AM - Anonymous

- Status changed from New to Closed